

Film Streams at the Ruth Sokolof Theater

March Student Night

Monday, March 6

FREE TICKETS!

Simply present ID at Box Office.

I Am Not Your Negro 2016 (PG-13)

Directed by Raoul Peck.

4:15 pm, 7:15 pm, and 9:30 pm

Using the unfinished manuscript of James Baldwin's final novel, this documentary endeavors to tell the story of race in modern American. Narrated by Samuel L. Jackson. USA; 95 min.

"Sometimes we get the movies we want, sometimes we get the ones we need, and once in a great while we get one that we didn't know we wanted or needed, but that arrives by way of karmic necessity: a stinging rebuke, searing provocation and soothing balm all in one." — The Washington Post

Receive a complimentary movie ticket the first Monday of every month by presenting your valid school ID (if applicable) at the Box Office.

No ID? Don't fret! You will be asked to provide school info instead.

More information, trailers & showtimes at filmstreams.org.

Film Streams' Ruth Sokolof Theater • 1340 Mike Fahey St. • Facebook/Twitter: @filmstreams

Neruda 2016 (R)

Directed by Pablo Larraín.

4:15 pm, 6:45 pm, and 9:10 pm

An inspector hunts down Nobel Prize-winning Chilean poet, Pablo Neruda, who becomes a fugitive in his home country in the late 1940s for joining the Communist Party. Chile/Argentina/Spain; 107 min.

"Blending fact with invention, NERUDA tells the story of a confrontation between an artist and an emerging dictatorship, and more generally illuminates the endless struggle between political authority and the creative imagination." — The New York Times

Sponsored by

UNIVERSITY OF Nebraska
Omaha

